What is needed is to combine, in a new thrust, a three-prong approach:

1. Use Presbyterian Young Adult Volunteers in Mission in the schools on reservations and youth work in churches, including uses of the media.
2. To combine the training of the overseas missionaries with an internship by placing them in ministry in the Indian culture. This would be a good way to gain understanding of cultural differences and relationship building
3. Begin a search for 100 churches/individuals who would make a faith promise of $10 per week, or any other amount to be used in a new outreach, to reach the youth of the Indian nations.
